

Jurg Gfeller

Founder and Director, Board of Directors

Jurg Gfeller is the Founder and Director of the National Ski Academy (NSA) in Collingwood, Ontario, established in 1986. Over the past decades, Gfeller has been instrumental in shaping the academy into one of Canada's premier institutions for alpine ski racing. Under his leadership, the NSA has developed a unique approach that balances high-level athletic training with academic achievement and personal growth, ensuring student athletes are equipped for success both on and off the slopes.

Gfeller's vision extends beyond athletic performance. He has created a program that addresses the holistic needs of student athletes, including education, physical fitness, mental preparation, and life skills development. His innovative approach has attracted talented athletes from across Ontario, Quebec, Europe, and Asia, making the NSA a hub for ski education and international competition preparation.

Through his dedication to the sport and commitment to fostering excellence, Jurg Gfeller has left a lasting impact on the Canadian skiing community. His leadership and pioneering work continue to inspire generations of athletes, coaches, and ski enthusiasts.
